

Charity and social business seminars

November 2018 - Central London

Battening down the hatches - understanding risk management and serious incident reporting

Wednesday 7 November

With an ever-increasing spotlight on risk management for charities over recent months, the Charity Commission has been pushing a changed agenda requiring a keener awareness of responsibilities for serious incident reporting (SIR). How can senior staff and trustees feel confident that the duties are complied with and reputational risk managed?

James Sinclair Taylor and guest speaker, accountant Jonathan Orchard of Sayer Vincent, will provide real case studies and discuss:

- challenges for dispersed charities and those in partnerships, federations and collaborations
- effective strategies for SIR compliance
- risk mitigation

Charity governance in a nutshell

Tuesday 13 November

The Charity Governance Code supported by the Charity Commission emphasises the need for good governance. This seminar is ideal for all those involved in governance and would be particularly useful for trustees. Andrew Studd will cover:

- what is good governance
- approaches to review your governance arrangements
- the most common areas where improvement is required
- practical tips and advice on how to achieve better governance
- trustee induction

An A-Z of safeguarding - what does it mean and is your charity compliant?

Wednesday 28 November

The Charity Commission has made safeguarding a key focus. The Commission's much expanded vision on safeguarding underlines a duty to look after not just the young and vulnerable but to protect staff, beneficiaries and the general public. What does this idea of safeguarding now mean for the new responsibilities of trustees and senior staff?

James Sinclair Taylor and Carla Whalen will share their experiences and recommendations, with a focus on:

- Charity Commission guidance on expanding safeguarding obligations and expectations
- the implications for charities working in different sectors and with varying beneficiary groups
- the practical steps to ensure compliance
- dealing with potential risks and tricky issues that might arise
